To The Hiring Manager,

The UX Interaction Designer role seems like it would be an excellent match for my background and interests. With a strong background working in the design field, I'm well-positioned to contribute innovative design solutions, new UI concepts, and rapid prototyping skills to your team.

My background in industrial design has given me years of experience working directly with clients and stakeholders to design new solutions that meet their needs as well as their target consumer. I have also spent years working on the interface designs for many consumer electronic projects. I have recently completed a six-month intensive UX/UI Boot Camp at UCI where I was able to focus on user experience at web design prototyping. I believe that these skills and experience will fill your needs for the position well.

I'm interested to learn more about contributing to your team and I'm excited to speak with you further about this position.

Sincerely,
Mathew Astengo
